

Jonathan Silver

Chair of the Global Sustainability Platform,
Apollo Global Management

Mr. Silver is one of America's leading clean economy investors and advisors. He is currently Chair of the Global Sustainability Platform at Apollo Global Management (NYSE: APO), helping shape and guide the firm's resource-efficient investments. To date, Apollo has invested over $90 billion in the sector.

Prior to joining Apollo, Mr. Silver worked at Guggenheim Partners, a $350 billion global investment and advisory financial services firm, focused on transactions for some of the world's largest power, energy and infrastructure companies.

Mr. Silver is a former member of the boards of National Grid (NYSE: NGG), a FTSE 15 and Fortune Global 300 utility and Plug Power (NASDAQ: PLUG), one of the country's leading hydrogen companies. He currently chairs the board of a privately held sustainable packaging company and has served on over a dozen corporate boards.

Named one of the country's "top ten green-tech influencers" (Reuters), Mr. Silver led both the U.S. government's $40 billion clean energy investment fund and its' $20 billion advanced automotive technology fund during the Obama Administration. These were, for more than a decade, the largest dedicated clean energy funds in the world. He and his team underwrote financing for some of the largest, most innovative, and most complex energy projects in the country, including utility-scale solar, wind, geothermal, biofuels, fossil, nuclear and advanced automotive technology projects. Under his leadership, the fund provided the first debt financing for Tesla and Vogtle, the first nuclear power plant to be built in the last 40 years, among others. His transactions were twice named "Deal of the Year", and one was nominated for "Deal of the Decade" by leading investment publications.

Mr. Silver was the Chief Operating Officer of Tiger Management, one of the country's largest and most successful hedge funds, and co-founded venture capital firm Core Capital Partners. He was also the Managing Partner of Tax Equity Advisors, a Registered Investment Advisor working with Fortune 500 companies on investments in solar power projects and began his career at McKinsey and Company, in the Financial Institutions practice.

Mr. Silver has significant public sector experience, having served as a senior official in three U.S. Cabinets: Energy, Commerce and Interior, and as an advisor to the Secretary of the Treasury. He is an expert on how public policy affects investment in energy, power, and the environment. He has testified frequently on Capitol Hill and keynoted numerous energy conferences.

Mr. Silver has also served on the boards of the Federation of American Scientists, Resources for the Future, American Forests (Chair), the Federal City Council, the Community Foundation of the National Capitol Region, WETA (public television), and as special advisor to the Chancellor of the DC public schools. He is a Life Member of the Council on Foreign Relations.

An honors graduate of Harvard University, Mr. Silver holds a C.E.P from the Institute of Political Studies in Paris and did additional graduate work at Institute of International Studies in Geneva while on Fulbright and Rotary Graduate Fellowships. He speaks French and Spanish.

Mr. Silver and his family live in Washington, DC.